

ELECTION2015: GLASGOW

WHAT'S AT STAKE FOR WORK, PAY AND UNIONS?

POLLING STATION

6:30PM | 12 FEBRUARY
UNITE THE UNION

SPEAKERS:

Neil Findlay
MSP

Libby Brooks,
Guardian

Dave Moxham,
STUC

Angela O'Hagan,
Glasgow
Caledonian University

class
Centre for Labour
and Social Studies

class

ELECTION 2015: WHAT'S AT STAKE FOR WORK, PAY AND UNIONS?

6:30PM | THURSDAY 12 FEBRUARY

UNITE THE UNION, JOHN SMITH HOUSE, 145/165 WEST REGENT STREET, GLASGOW, G2 4RZ

With the General Election just weeks away, the debate about how we get fairness and greater equality at work is now more urgent than ever. Pay inequality and falling living standards will be defining challenges for the next government. With a record 5 million workers on low pay, the decline in collective bargaining coverage and new threats to hard-won employment rights, how can the trade union movement fight back?

High labour standards raise wages, increase demand, decrease unemployment and diminish inequality. Trade unions are essential in putting collective bargaining at the heart of the UK's economic reconstruction and ensuring our future economy is a sustainable one that works for everyone and not just the few.

SPEAKERS:

- Neil Findlay MSP, Shadow Cabinet Member for Fair Work, Skills and Training
- Angela O'Hagan, Women in Scotland's Economy Research Centre, Glasgow Caledonian University
- Dave Moxham, STUC Deputy General Secretary
- Chair: Libby Brooks, The Guardian